

Did you manage to contact him? I tried all day yesterday. He must be away on business or something. What seems strange to me is he's not returning any calls or messages.

• • •

There weren't as many as I thought. I was expecting a big crowd, but only about 300 people showed up. The police were there to keep order, but they didn't have much work to do.

• • •

Don't tell anyone we're planning to move away. I want to keep it a secret until we've closed the deal on the new house in Atlanta. If people find out, they'll try to convince us to stay.

• • •

Whether to go there or not is your decision. Why do you keep asking me for advice? I've never been to Japan, so I don't know what it's like. You have to make the decision on your own.

• • •

Somebody is coming in our direction but I can't tell who it is. They're too far away. I think it's a man with a tennis racket in his hand but I still can't tell. He's still too far away.

• • •

Before you put it in the oven, you should add a bit of sugar on the surface. And remember not to leave it in the oven for more than 20 minutes. And keep the temperature at 150 degrees.

• • •

Come in, Pedro, and have a seat. Would you like a coffee? I've just been talking to John Evans and he was telling me how pleased they are with the results of the survey you conducted.

• • •

We've finally decided to buy a new house. Now that we have a new addition to the family, it's become almost urgent to find a place with three bedrooms.

• • •

Call him and tell him we've reached an agreement with the management. Tell him he doesn't need to worry anymore. They gave us almost everything we asked for.

• • •

What did they say? Do they still insist on postponing the event? They must realize that if we postpone the event, we won't be able to organize it until next summer at the earliest.